

Starbreeze recruits new Head of Investor Relations and Corporate Communications

STOCKHOLM (24 July, 2017) Starbreeze AB has recruited Ann Charlotte Svensson as Head of Investor Relations and Corporate Communications. She has 20 years of experience working with communications at listed companies.

Ann Charlotte comes from a role as Head of Group Communications at the finance group Catella and previously served as Senior Consultant at Hallvarsson & Halvarsson, where she primarily was advisor in financial communication assignments. Ann Charlotte also has established IR and communication functions at listed companies in the small cap segment, both in the role of communications and IR manager and as consultant with experience from the computer games and entertainment industry.

"With Ann Charlotte, we gain a person with extensive communication experience at listed companies. Starbreeze has made a fantastic journey in recent years with international expansion as well as uplisting to Nasdaq First North. We are now planning for yet another list change to Nasdaq Stockholm's main list and are therefore strengthening the communications department with one more person," says Bo Andersson Klint, CEO of Starbreeze.

Ann Charlotte takes over responsibility for Investor Relations and Corporate Communications from Maeva Sponbergs. Maeva continues in her role as Executive Vice President Communication with the overall oversight of the Group's communications in close collaboration with the CEO. Ann Charlotte takes up her position as of July 24th and will be a part of Starbreeze management group as from the same date.

"We are very pleased to welcome Ann Charlotte to Starbreeze and thus further strengthen our communications department. She will be responsible for Starbreeze communication with the stock market and will complement my role as overall responsible for the information flow at Group level and between companies," said Maeva Sponbergs, Executive Vice President Communication at Starbreeze.
