Probi has signed a long-term agreement with Cilag GmbH International, a member of the Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies for the development of a probiotic product

The rapid growth of the probiotic segment and new exciting research on the importance of human microbiota have increased the interest from pharma companies, and their consumer health care divisions, in probiotic product development.

Probi has over 25 years experience in the successful development of clinically substantiated, health enhancing probiotics. To further expand Probi's product development pipeline and commercialize its strain portfolio, Probi has signed a long-term development agreement with Cilag GmbH International, a member of the Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies.

The parties will jointly initiate a probiotic development program. The program will be funded under non-disclosed financial terms by Cilag GmbH International and Probi will contribute with probiotic expertise.

"We are very happy to initiate this development program together with a strong global partner in OTC. By combining Probi's probiotic expertise with the pharma company's development resources and regulatory expertise, we will form a very strong team moving forward together." says Ole Søgaaard Andersen CEO of Probi.
