Thule introduces an all-around pack solution for 2018 that is built to withstand any season and countless activities

Built to support a day hike, a short backpacking excursion, camping or a weekend away, the Thule AllTrail collection provides unmatched versatility to survive the elements through any activity and every season.

An all-new collection of Thule hiking backpacks is being introduced, specifically designed for the needs of any outdoor enthusiast looking to simplify their pack options. The Thule AllTrail is a collection of two gender-specific sizes, 35L and 45L, with 10 cm/4 in of torso adjustability for the perfect fit. The collection of Thule AllTrail packs will be available in February 2018.

Built for the avid outdoor enthusiast who wants a singular pack for all of their pursuits, the Thule AllTrail is the one pack that does it all. From its integrated rain cover and dedicated hydration sleeve, to the pack's breathable shoulder straps, hipbelt padding and back panel, the Thule AllTrail has it all. Stay comfortable on the trail, and attain the perfect fit with 10 cm/4 in of torso adjustability built into the back panel. All of your gear is right within reach with features like a front shove-it pocket and easy access side zippers. Conveniently store trekking poles on your hipbelt without taking off your pack using the included Thule VersaClick Pole Holder. The innovative hipbelt accessory mount is compatible with any of the other interchangeable Thule VersaClick accessories available (sold separately).

Available in men's and women's specific models, in two versatile sizes, 35L & 45L, the Thule AllTrail is the all-around pack for your next adventure.
