Electrolux retains position as industry leader in Dow Jones Sustainability Indices

Stockholm, Sweden, September 13, 2018

Electrolux has been named Industry Leader in the Household Durables category in the Dow Jones Sustainability World Index (DJSI World). It is the twelfth consecutive year that Electrolux receives this recognition in the assessment, which is published by RobecoSAM.

"We're honored to once again have been recognized as industry leaders within sustainability. Acting sustainably is part of our purpose – shape living for the better – and reflects on everything we do and in our efforts to empower consumers to live more enjoyably and sustainably," said Henrik Sundström, Head of Sustainability Affairs at Electrolux. "This year, the assessment results of Electrolux show the width of our sustainability promises. In all dimensions - economic, environmental and social, Electrolux obtains a leadership position in our industry."

The Dow Jones Sustainability Indices enable investors to integrate sustainability considerations into their portfolios. At the same time, they provide an effective engagement platform to encourage companies to adopt sustainable best practices. For more information, visit: www.sustainability-indices.com.
