

Paf Charity Cash Game on Åland makes €7,920 for cancer charity

The Åland gaming company Paf and the Swedish Poker Federation organised a charity cash to run in parallel with the poker tournament Paf Poker Challenge in Mariehamn. During three days of play, the 13 poker players who took part made €7,920 euros for the Swedish Prostate Cancer Federation.

The Paf Charity Cash Game was a cash game that was rake-free for those who took part. Instead Paf donated the total rake from the games to charity. A total of 13 specially chosen poker players from Sweden, Finland, Estonia and Åland took part in the Paf Charity Cash Game, which took place June 5-7, 2014.

"The Paf Charity Cash Game surpassed our expectations and many of the participating players praised the initiative. From a poker perspective, it was especially exciting to see Swedish names like Erik Friberg, Anton Herrmann and Jimmy Jönsson face such strong competition from Taneli Salonen of Finland and Enri Orav of Estonia. An extraordinary tribute must also be paid to the American Emil "White Lime" Patel who travelled the furthest to take part", says Björn Eriksson, a member of the Swedish Poker Federation that arranged the Paf Charity Cash Game.

The total rake sum from this year Paf Charity Cash Game was donated to the Swedish Prostate Cancer Federation to help in the fight against prostate cancer. In Sweden there are 85,000 men living with the diagnosis and every day about 27 new cases are added.

"We at the Prostate Cancer Federation would like to extend a big thank you to the players, to Paf and to the Swedish Poker Federation. The donation is important to us and will be used in research for better treatment and diagnostic methods as well as to raise the profile of the fight against prostate cancer, which is Sweden's most common cancer", says Torsten Tullberg, Director of the Prostate Cancer Federation.

The Paf Charity Cash Game was live streamed on Paf.com and the Swedish Poker Federation's website, with visible hole cards, commentary and interviews. It will be available in an edited version shortly.
