Binary Tree Introduces Enhanced User Interoperability and Collaboration between Lotus Domino and Microsoft Exchange 2013

Binary Tree Continues to Extend its Support of Microsoft Exchange Server 2013

NEWARK NJ – February 28, 2013 – Binary Tree, the provider of SMART Migration software and solutions for migrating to Microsoft Exchange and Microsoft Office 365, including the award-winning E2E Complete software that migrates users to Exchange 2013 and Exchange Online, today announced that support for Microsoft Exchange Server 2013 has been added to its CMT for Coexistence software. Binary Tree’s award-winning CMT for Coexistence software integrates Lotus Notes and Domino email environments with those based on Microsoft Outlook and Exchange to enable users with seamless interoperability between platforms. Now, administrators of legacy Lotus Domino and Microsoft Exchange platforms can turn to Binary Tree for their migrations to Exchange 2013.

“We are thrilled to announce this enhanced capability for Microsoft Exchange 2013 users who require workflow preservation with users of Lotus Domino,” stated Vadim Gringolts, chief technology officer of Binary Tree. “This product advancement further demonstrates our commitment to transforming a customer’s migration experience.”

Binary Tree’s CMT for Coexistence enables transparent interoperability for users currently managing workflow between Microsoft Exchange and Lotus Domino. CMT for Coexistence preserves the workflow and collaboration of the users on each of the platforms by ensuring the highest level of accuracy when exchanging directory information, email, calendar entries, calendar free/busy availability, and email-enabled applications. In addition to now supporting Microsoft Exchange Server 2013, CMT for Coexistence also supports Microsoft Exchange 2010, 2007 and 2003, Lotus Domino 7.x or higher, and Exchange Online in Microsoft Office 365.
