

K3 joins the Business Intelligence Elite

Leading software provider K3 has been appointed as an Elite partner by QlikTech, a leader in Business Discovery – user-driven Business Intelligence (BI).

K3 is a leading authority in delivering ERP, CRM, and Business Intelligence (BI) solutions and has been supplying QlikView for many years. The company has over 150 customers using QlikView to solve critical business problems and implements the software on any scale from a five-user system to an enterprise deployment of over 350 users. QlikView can be used for all types of reporting, forecasting and general data analysis and allows businesses to gain easy access to all their data sources and operational applications from one place.

John Campbell, QlikTech Alliance Director UK & Ireland said: “Demand for the Qlik View Business Discovery platform is growing as business users demand self-serve, easy access to information. K3’s Elite status is a result of their experience of delivering high value solutions to customers quickly and effectively. These included energy saving systems supplier Mark Group in Leicester, which identified a need to aid service-level reporting and view financial reports, and DayMen International (worldwide distributor of the Lowepro, Acme Made and Joby brands) who implemented Qlik View initially for sales and operational analysis.”

Simon Devine, Business Intelligence Practice Manager at K3 said: “We have been working towards Elite Partner status with QlikTech for quite some time, so to kick off 2013 with this recognition is great news for us and our QlikView customers. It demonstrates the levels of business we have achieved over the past few years and means that we can now provide our customers with even greater technical support. With greater access to the QlikTech team we can solve even the most complex of requirements for our QlikView customers quickly and to a high standard.”
