SCC announces partnership with mhub to deliver digital workplace app

SCC, Europe's biggest privately-owned IT services business, has signed a reseller agreement with mhub to partner in the delivery of its digital workplace app and enable greater collaboration and productivity for SCC customers.

mhub is the low cost digital workplace app that brings all work apps together into a single mobile hub, unlocking the value of IT investments.

As a customer and user of mhub for two years, SCC has integrated its tailored app – SCC Connect – across its UK business, with plans to expand use into its European operations in France, Spain & Romania.

With SCC's Microsoft SharePoint division having already identified mhub as a market leading mobile layer for its Microsoft and Social Intranet solutions, global recognition of the value in reselling mhub was established at SCC's annual sales kick-off in May.

In the first month of the agreement, SCC has introduced mhub to a number of its significant strategic customers, with delivery of its first mhub solution due for completion in Q3 FY17.

Michael Nagle, founder and CEO of mhub, said:

“In our development and work with many industry applications, our customers have shown an increase in return on investment with the Digital Workplace App. We are excited to work with SCC to deliver a secure and powerful application that can be run on any industry mobile or smart tablet device, enabling SCC customers to improve productivity and get more value from their IT investments.”

SCC uses mhub to deliver rich media internally, within isolated teams and for business-wide internal marketing communications, and externally for tailored communications direct to customers and partners.

SCC Marketing Director Neil Atkins added:

“mhub's digital workplace app enables levels of collaboration that align directly with SCC's core business messages, values, and services propositions. As a customer of mhub, it was obvious that our own customers could benefit in the same way we have by integrating mhub into their businesses. We've benefitted from the ability to deliver improved, personalised communications and by provoking the adoption of mhub as a collaboration tool. Our focus is now on helping our customers achieve the same.”
