

Designing Spaces™ on Lifetime TV Makes Impact with HP at the Boys & Girls Club

Kids Spaces Back to School™ mini-series creates excitement at Boys & Girls Club with HP demonstration of how learning can be fun on the new HP Slate7 tablets

Pompano Beach, FL – CISION – August 7, 2013) Home improvement show Designing Spaces™ on Lifetime TV will feature HP on the “Designing Spaces – Kids Spaces of Hope: Fostering Bright Futures Back to School” mini-series at a Boys & Girls Club. Tune in on Friday, August 9th at 7:30 am (ET/PT), as Alberto Torres, senior vice president, Mobility Global Business Unit, HP, joins the show to demonstrate the new kid-friendly HP Slate7 tablets. This show will re-air Wednesday, August 23rd.

During the “Designing Spaces – Kids Spaces of Hope: Fostering Bright Futures Back to School” special series HP donates 10 HP Slate7 tablets to the students at the Boys & Girls Club in Pompano Beach, Florida. The Kid Spaces team partnered up with HP to come up with a way to help children complete their assignments and expand their educational opportunities in a fun, interactive manner.

The HP Slate7 is an affordable, Android tablet with a 7-inch diagonal screen. Weighing 13 ounces, it has a stainless steel frame, two cameras, and print compatibility, making it an ideal solution for students of elementary, middle and high school ages. It also is the industry’s first tablet to offer embedded Beats Audio, for the best-sounding, richest audio experience available on a tablet.

“It’s been great having HP, such a well-known and trusted name in the technology space, join us for this special Back to School series. Their generous donation of HP Slate7 tablets to the kids will definitely enhance their learning experience and even help them look forward to doing their homework!” said Lysa Liemer, Executive VP and Chief Operating Officer of Designing Spaces™ on Lifetime TV.

“We know back-to-school can get expensive and having good learning tools is important to scholastic performance,” said Torres, senior vice president, Mobility Global Business Unit, HP. “The Slate7 is an ideal trusted personal companion, making it the perfect option for parents to give their kids.”
