

KELTENWELT AM GLAUBERG

Museum • Archaeological Park • Research Center

Track down a long distant past!

Our guided tours for groups make the visit to the KELTENWELT at the Glauberg during all seasons of the year an exciting experience for young and old.

For a tour of the exhibition with many additional information, our visitors can borrow multimedia audioguides (German, English, French) for a fee.

Activity programs

The proof of the pudding is in the eating – following this old insight, the KELTENWELT presents a wide range of offers. The focus is on an active experience of archaeology and the immersion into past cultures.

During the season extending from March to October, we offer our visitors each day (except for Monday) at 1 pm “open guided tours” in the museum.

The World of the Celts at the Glauberg Museum • Archaeological Park • Research Center

The Glauberg is a very special place and was already settled by humans as early as the late Stone Age. The finds from three Celtic burials from the 5th century BC, and the statue of a Celtic ruler are unique and recognised throughout the world as an archaeological sensation.

The museum is part of the KELTENWELT at the Glauberg. This also includes a large archaeological park and a research centre. In the park you will find the reconstruction of a burial mound, a mysterious system of banks and ditches, and fortifications from early Celtic times. Further monuments from other historical periods can be seen on the Glauberg plateau.

The museum's treasures

The life-sized sandstone statue and the finds from the burials at the Glauberg remained undiscovered in the ground for nearly 2,500 years. They are the centrepiece of the exhibition and the original objects are on display. In addition you can also see the finds from settlements at the Glauberg and its environs, which are no less important. Multimedia installations and a fictional story in comic style that accompanies visitors transport our guests into the age of the Celts.

The exhibition at the KELTENWELT at the Glauberg is housed in what is currently one of the most spectacular museum buildings in Germany. It sheds light on the culture of the Celts from a number of quite different perspectives, but the centrepiece is always the spectacular finds from the Glauberg.

The Archaeological Park

Explore the spacious archaeological park around the museum. From the reconstructed burial mound the route leads to the hilltop plateau with the remains of the once imposing Celtic fortification and the relics from the Middle Ages.

Here not only the exciting history of the Glauberg, but also a beautiful landscape with a species-rich flora and fauna are waiting for you.

The museum bistro – delicacies from the region

The museum bistro of the KELTENWELT at the Glauberg has prepared to meet your wishes. Here you will find delicious cakes, food and drinks. It has a capacity of 80 seats, a large outdoor and the same opening hours as the museum (10:00 am-6:00 pm, Tuesday to Sunday). Seat reservations for groups are possible. In this case our menu can be adapted to your wishes, too.
