

Shaylor CEO Shines at Awards Ceremony

Stephen Shaylor, CEO of Shaylor Group, has been named winner of the 'Alumnus of the Year: Enterprise and Leadership' award at the University of Wolverhampton's Business Achievements Awards 2013.

The award celebrates the success of a graduate who has made an important contribution to the local, national or international community through an enterprising business venture, or has improved the way business is done through innovative leadership.

Speaking about his success, Stephen said: "Since graduating in 1993 this is the first time I have returned to the University. I am very impressed with the progress that the University has made, in particular the infrastructure, facilities and range of academic courses available.

The University of Wolverhampton has a clear vision of where it is heading as regards the very important part it plays in the local community and its commitment to excellence in respect of academia in the local, as well as on the national and international stage.

I am delighted to be the recipient of the Alumnus of the Year award for Enterprise and Leadership, and look forward to collaborating with the University through business initiatives moving forward".

The award recognises Shaylor Group's burgeoning reputation for excellence and recent successes which include gaining Investors in People Gold Standard, being named Best Companies 2013 'One to Watch' award and previously making The Sunday Times 'Best Companies to Work For' list. The company has also won a number of building awards over the past few months, including being named finalists in the 'Leadership and People Development' award at the Celebrating Construction 2013 awards earlier this month.
