

Brighter's Subsidiary Camanio Launches Innovative Pilot Project with Tomelilla Municipality

Brighter (Publ) Announces today that its subsidiary Camanio is launching a pilot project for digitization of elderly care in Tomelilla municipality.

Based on the unique needs, the project in Tomelilla municipality will evaluate the user experience when working in a digital care platform. The project is intended to contribute with increased knowledge and insight into working methods and the use of digital platforms in elderly care.

“Our digital platform Camanio SmartCare opens up for a digital way of working that brings together administration and alarm management in one and the same portal. We are very happy to be able to increase our insights about the role of technology in the business and the work of the personnel. It gives us the opportunity to further develop our range of services in close collaboration with a municipality and we have big visions of how we aim to improve elderly care for both seniors, staff and the municipality,” says Catharina Borgenstierna, CEO Camanio.

The project, which will run for about three months in 2021, includes care staff in a special accommodation for the elderly. The project evaluates user experience, administration and decision support in a web-based portal and app for mobile devices. Through the project, Camanio provides security-creating technology, e.g. in the form of security alarms and sensors for digital supervision, as well as opportunities for business development around digitization and training for personnel in the facilities.

After a completed project with positive results, the company sees several exciting collaboration opportunities with Tomelilla municipality, also in other collaboration areas. As the company has intensified its work with procurements and call-offs within the framework agreement with ADDA (formerly SKR), they are also looking forward to possible openings in Sweden where the company together with the municipalities can work together with the development of innovative care technology.
