

Ahlseil strengthens its tool offering by acquiring Grønvold Maskinservice in Oslo, Norway

The Ahlseil Group has entered into an agreement to buy all shares in Grønvold Maskinservice. The company has an annual turnover of over NOK 200 million.

The acquisition strengthens the offering to the construction industry, while Ahlseil also invests in the service and maintenance of tools, an important contribution to a more sustainable industry.

Since 1996, Grønvold Maskinservice has served the market with high-quality tools, fastening and personal protective equipment. As they become part of the Ahlseil Group, synergies and opportunities are created for both companies.

Ahlseil has a wide product range and very good logistics solutions which Grønvold Maskinservice's new and existing customers now have access to. Through the acquisition, Ahlseil gains access to Grønvold Maskin's high availability, as well as cutting-edge expertise and a highly-appreciated service workshop, which enable Ahlseil's customers to maintain and repair their tools – an easy way to minimise frequent new purchases and unnecessary waste.

Admission is subject to the approval of the Norwegian Competition Authority.
