Polygiene presents sustainable growth in Asia at Small Enterprise Day on June 12

Polygiene is working with world-leading brands to reduce environmental impact by offering the consumer market more sustainable textiles. Polygiene is the market leader within odor control; Polygiene's odor control treatment enables textiles to last longer and to be washed less frequently. Polygiene partners are primarily manufacturers of premier clothing brands.

Growth is strong, including in Asia, where the company has forged several strategic partnerships. In Japan, for instance, Polygiene partners with Goldwin with Ellesse and The North Face in its brand portfolio as well as Wacoal, a global manufacturer of women's clothing. In Europe, Polygiene and its partner, the Italian company Sinterama, which is Europe's leading polyester yarn producer, developed an entirely new type of odor-free yarn, Newlife. Polygiene's odor control technology has been integrated into a fiber made of recycled PET bottles.

Christian von Uthmann, CEO of the textile tech company Polygiene, will present the company at 14.40 on Monday, June 12, at the Sheraton Hotel in Stockholm.
