

CELLINK opens office in Lyon, France to strengthen presence in Europe

CELLINK has announced the opening of an office in Lyon, France to strengthen their relationships with customers locally and throughout Europe.

As a leader in the bioprinting industry, CELLINK has decided to open an office in France where there is a flourishing scene in the biotech field. The company currently has offices in six cities worldwide; Boston, Gothenburg, Blacksburg, Kyoto, Stuttgart and Freiburg. Thanks to the newly opened office in Lyon, CELLINK will be able to offer a direct sales channel on the market through its own sales team.

"Opening an office in Lyon is part of our continuous effort to cover our global core markets with a direct presence; increasing our sales efforts, and improving our stellar application support. The new office will bring us closer to our customer, allowing us to serve them better with our wide portfolio and innovative applications."

– Torben Thölix, Head of Global Sales.

The French branch will offer the full product portfolio of CELLINK and its subsidiaries, Dispendix and cytena. Together with a strong sales force and applications support, the new office in France will strengthen CELLINK's presence in central Europe and enable a closer dialogue with the local bioprinting community.
