Oriola focuses on profitable growth and value creation at Capital Markets Day

Oriola will host its Capital Markets Day on Tuesday 12 May 2025. During the beginning of this year, the company has completed a review of its long-term plan, financial targets and capital allocation priorities. At the event, Oriola will explain how it is moving from ambition to action, with a focus on profitable growth and long-term value creation.

Over the past years, Oriola has taken decisive steps to strengthen its underlying business, simplify its operating model and become a more focused, service-led company.

“Oriola is a service company at its core. We have strengthened our underlying business and simplified how we operate and have now a clear focus on execution. By combining distribution and advisory services, as well as health products, into one integrated offering, we aim to remove complexity for our customers and create value beyond logistics. At our Capital Markets Day, we will show how this translates into concrete actions and long-term value,” says Oriola’s CEO Katarina Gabrielson.

A key theme of the day will be how Oriola modernises its operations and supply chain to support growth, scalability and reliability. The company has significant investments ongoing to modernise its infrastructure, and build a stronger, more efficient platform for the future.

At the Capital Markets Day, management will describe how Oriola is translating its strategy into profitable growth and value creation, giving a clearer view of the company’s progress and readiness to reach the new financial targets.
