Artificial Solutions Celebrates International Women's Day With #AiAllies Campaign

Artificial Solutions is delighted to announce a brand-new series that will celebrate the success, innovation and leadership of women in the technology sector, beginning today on International Women's Day.

Feature interviews with leaders from across the tech-sector will be shared across the month of March in order to help create a network of #AiAllies for women to connect and learn from. Each interview will be published with a strong focus on practical advice for others to follow, while key learning resources will also be shared throughout the series.

Following on from the publication of Artificial Solutions Diversity Manifesto, #AiAllies will demonstrate an ongoing commitment to improving access and education for women in the STEM sector.

Chief Impact Officer, Marie Angselius Schönbeck, said:

"We're thrilled to announce this series and can't wait to share inspirational stories from across our network of partners, customers and industry friends. Importantly, we'll also be promoting the stories of the women who act as leaders within our own company."

The Chairwoman of Artificial Solutions' Advisory Board, Gavriella Schuster, is a leading figure in the fight to improve greater gender balance across the tech-industry and her #BeCOME framework is being implemented throughout the Artificial Solutions ecosystem.

She said:

"Our ambition is to lead by example and act as a beacon for the entire industry in order to create a more inclusive and diverse future, together."
