Update Regarding No Straight Roads

Today, EG7 announces that the title No Straight Roads is expected to be released in August 2020.

No Straight Roads is developed by Metronomik, is published by Sold Out and is a musical action adventure game set in a colorful world. The title is Sold Outs' largest digital investment to date and will be launched on Nintendo Switch, Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC.

The title was previously scheduled to be released on June 30, 2020, but due to strategic choices for what is required for a successful launch, a new release date in August 2020 will be announced shortly.

No Straight Roads has generated a great deal of interest in the media and Sold Out now has the opportunity to focus further on marketing for the title, which is a strong component of EG7's current pipeline.

The new launch date will be communicated to the market as soon as it has been confirmed.

Comment by Robin Flodin, CEO of EG7:

"I am very positive that the developers are now given the opportunity to further fine-tune No Straight Roads at the same time as Sold Out can focus on an even better marketing campaign."
