

Prostatype Genomics enters German market

Prostatype Genomics can today announce its expansion into Germany, a key priority for the Company. Starting immediately, Karlheinz Dewald will represent the company and the Prostatype® prostate cancer test on the German market.

Prostatype Genomics CEO, Fredrik Persson, comments: "I am very happy about entering the German market. This is a key milestone in Prostatype Genomics commercial plan, and we have been meticulous in finding the right partner to execute the Prostatype® launch in Germany. Karlheinz Dewald's organization has the expertise and experience to represent innovative products, and we are convinced this is the right way to establish Prostatype® in Germany."
