

QuiBids Says Check the Blog for Bids!

QuiBids is giving away free bids during the month of March through a series of coupon codes. Participants also have a chance to win an Apple iPad mini.

Oklahoma City, OK — March 5, 2013 — QuiBids.com, the world's leading entertainment auction site, announces it's giving away free bids during the month of March in its Check the Blog for Bids contest. QuiBids will reveal coupon codes for free bids that you can only get on their blog each of the first three weeks of March.

The promotion consists of three weeks of daily blog posts from Monday through Friday that will provide a letter each day that will spell out an unordered word at the end of each business week. Each week's word will spell out a QuiBids-centric code for participants to unscramble before receiving the bids. Each coupon code will be for a certain amount of bids that can be redeemed that weekend only. Participants will only have three days to redeem each week's free bids, Friday through Sunday. The following Monday a new week starts to build out that week's code for bids and the previous week's code will be invalid.

Each week's promo code will also be used for a side sweepstakes which entails a weekly submission for the chance to win other prizes. Upon entering for their chance to win great prizes, participants will need to enter in that week's promotional code correctly. The prizes in the sweepstakes are two gift cards and an Apple iPad mini.

"We're always putting together new and entertaining ways for our customers to engage with us," said Jill Farrand, QuiBids' director of public relations. "We wanted to reward those who follow the QuiBids blog with an easy, fun way to obtain free bids. For those who don't normally visit our blog, we want to show them we help customers by giving them tips and more in-depth educational resources for using our services."
