

Stefan Nilsson, CEO of Lumito, has passed away

"It is with great sadness that we announce this tragic and highly unexpected message," says Masoud Khayyami, Chairman of the Board of Lumito. "Stefan Nilsson has left us very unexpectedly. He passed away yesterday due to a heart attack, in connection with exercise on Friday. Our thoughts go to Stefan's family and loved ones."

"With his solid experience from the HighTech and the MedTech industry and through his strong and genuine commitment, Stefan has been an exceptionally strong and skilled leader for Lumito which he in our eyes, has led to become a very promising MedTech company. We are very grateful for the time we had the opportunity to have him at the helm. He has been much appreciated by both the Board and employees," says Masoud Khayyami.

The Board has appointed Board member Urban Widén as Acting CEO and CFO Henrik Ljung as Deputy CEO. The board immediately initiates a recruitment process to find Stefan Nilsson's successor.
