

Risk Intelligence launches the first test version of the LandRisk module together with the first pilot project clients.

Risk Intelligence A/S (“Risk Intelligence”) launched during Q3 2018 the first test version of LandRisk. The test version is being adapted for the first two pilot projects and will, among other things, include landside transportation from East Asia to Europe. The first pilot projects are carried out in cooperation with two logistics companies, while more pilot projects from the production/industrial sector are in the process of being added.

One of the two companies is one of the world’s leading container logistics companies. The second company is one of the world’s leading providers of freight forwarding, logistics solutions and supply chain management services. Due to the corporate policy of both companies further disclosure is not possible.

“Launching the first test version of LandRisk is an important step for Risk Intelligence as it provides important live visualization of the building blocks of the product. Together with the first pilot project clients, we will address the end-to-end security threats and risks along specific global supply logistics chains and get significant insights that will be valuable for the further development of the final product during 2019” states Hans Tino Hansen, CEO of Risk Intelligence.

Risk Intelligence is a dynamic world leader in risk assessment and planning. Risk Intelligence is a leading, trusted and reliable partner, acting with integrity and expertise to deliver a dynamic, clear and accessible end-to-end solution.
