

Risk Intelligence A/S announces launch-date for LandRisk

Risk Intelligence A/S (“Risk Intelligence”) announces today that the Company is launching LandRisk 1 October 2019.

Risk Intelligence announces that LandRisk will be launched 1 October 2019 at a launch event in Düsseldorf, Germany; the geographical centre of European land transportation. LandRisk will be the third module in the Risk Intelligence System product suite which also includes MaRisk and PortRisk. The products can be used individually and when combined, they provide the customer with a complete end-to-end supply chain security risk intelligence solution.

The cooperation with LandRisk beta-testers from multiple industries has been very rewarding and the development phase of LandRisk has been completed successfully. LandRisk will offer the customer a variety of sought-after tools to mitigate risk to employees, assets and cargo including threat assessments by in-house analysts, dynamic hotspot reporting, incident monitoring and reporting, a logistics route planning tool and 24/7 direct access to a duty watch team.

With the launch of LandRisk Risk Intelligence officially enters a market, which is at least 10 times bigger than the current maritime market and will play a significant role in the future growth of the company. The launch of LandRisk is also a major milestone in the Growth Plan for 2020.

CEO Hans Tino Hansen says “Planning, bright ideas, hard work and dedication have brought us to where we are today; being ready to launch LandRisk on 1 October 2019 as promised in our growth plan and communicated prior to our IPO. Living up to our promises is part of the Risk Intelligence DNA and is vital when developing long-term client relations. Our clients fully acknowledge this proofed by our close to 100% retention rate.

Risk Intelligence is seen as a world leader in the maritime security intelligence market. Now, we are ready to expand our products and services to serve companies involved in land-based logistics, by road, rail or in-land waterways. We promise the same level of quality in terms of information, analysis, assistance and advice in security risk management that we have provided for many years for our constantly growing client portfolio in the maritime domain.”

More information about the launch event can be found on the Risk Intelligence webpage.
