Fiskars Corporation is planning to temporarily close its stores in Finland, initiates employee consultations

The coronavirus outbreak impacts people's everyday and has a negative impact on consumer demand in Fiskars key markets. The health and wellbeing of employees and customers are a key priority for the company. Fiskars Group has made the decision to temporarily close its stores in Finland. Webstores in Finland remain open.

Fiskars will begin employee consultations on temporary layoffs due to production and financial reasons in Finland. The planned temporary layoffs would be for a maximum of 90 days and impact personnel in retail stores, factories and distribution centers in Finland, affecting 740 employees.

Fiskars continues to evaluate all measures to mitigate the impact of the outbreak on its business. The situation varies from country to country. There are temporary store and factory closures also in a few other markets, in some countries store and factory operations have restarted.
