

Safeture expands partnership with The Inkerman Group

Safeture AB has signed an enlarged partnership agreement with The Inkerman Group, a well-respected provider of risk and intelligence services all over the world. Through the agreement, Inkerman is now one of Safetures Gold partners.

The Inkerman Group was established in 1996 to provide bespoke risk and intelligence services to organizations throughout the world. The company has a strong and experienced team of qualified professionals with the capability to deliver anywhere and in rapid response times.

The client base includes multinational corporations, companies, governments, and private individuals, for which they provide the full range of risk and intelligence services.

"The Inkerman Group has already been working with Safeture for a number of years and this partnership agreement takes our working relationship to the next level. The Guardian App is an important and integral part of the delivery of Inkerman's high value services to its clients," Gerald Moor, CEO of The Inkerman Group.

"The expanded cooperation with Inkerman opens up new business opportunities where our leading technical solution helps their customers feel safe," says Magnus Hultman, CEO of Safeture.

Safeture operates a world-leading technical platform on travel security, risk and crisis management and emergency communication. The central components of the platform are the Safeture App and the Safeture Management Tool, with which companies can locate their employees anywhere in the world, communicate with them and support them in crises. It offers users a real-time alert system on security-related issues in their environment and, using the Emergency Button, the possibility to call for help in an emergency with one click. The app includes various other features such as country information, medical databases, flight information, currency converters, and e-learning.
