

Safeture and Global 24 Sign Agreement with Major Australian Banking Group

Safeture, a leading technology provider in people risk management, has together with its Australian partner Global 24, signed an agreement with a new client in Australia's financial services industry.

The customer is a major Australian banking group with an extensive national presence, serving both private and business customers nationwide. The organization will use the Safeture platform, supported by Global 24's security and assistance services, to strengthen its ability to protect employees who travel and work domestically and internationally.

The combined solution provides the customer with real-time risk intelligence, travel monitoring, automated alerts, and communication tools. It will give the organization a clearer overview of employees who may be affected by security incidents, natural disasters, health risks, or other disruptions.

"Financial institutions have a strong responsibility to protect their employees, whether they are working or traveling. This agreement demonstrates the value of combining Safeture's technology with Global 24's local expertise and operational support," says Magnus Hultman, CEO of Safeture.

Through the Safeture platform, the customer will be able to identify employees who may be affected by an incident, communicate with them quickly, and provide relevant information and assistance. The solution will support the organization's broader duty-of-care and business continuity processes.

"We are pleased to welcome another major Australian organization to the Safeture platform, alongside Global 24. Australia is an important market for us, and this agreement further strengthens our position in the region," Magnus Hultman continues.

Global 24 provides security, medical assistance, and crisis management services to organizations operating in Australia and around the world. The partnership combines Global 24's 24/7 operational capabilities with Safeture's people risk management technology.
