Swedish Police sign framework agreement with INVISIO

The previously communicated award decisions by the Swedish Police have now been formalized in two framework agreements for communication equipment with active hearing protection. The agreements contain no guarantees for volumes, but INVISIO estimates that it includes thousands of police officers and the potential value of the agreements, over their lifetimes, to be between SEK 50 and SEK 75 million.

The two framework agreements signed are for communication equipment with active hearing protection, and are valid for two years, with an option for the Police to extend by a further two years. INVISIO estimates that the potential value of the two agreements, over their two-year lifetime, amounts to SEK 50-75 million. The framework agreements do not guarantee any volumes, and the call-offs will be as needed.

The agreements with the Swedish Police refer to the Police Authority, Police training (Police Academies), Swedish Security Service and the Swedish Economic Crime Authority.

The agreements with the Swedish Police are important references for INVISIO in relation to the ongoing modernization of communication equipment that is taking place globally in the police and security sector. INVISIO's system is well in line with these initiatives, through ensuring good hearing protection while enabling the user to communicate with retained situational awareness in extreme environments.

"We are very proud of this opportunity to offer thousands of Swedish police officers INVISIO's world-leading communication system with active hearing protection, which can improve their ability to communicate with retained situational awareness in noisy environments", says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO of INVISIO.
