INVISIO receives order worth SEK 90 million from a European customer

INVISIO has received an order worth approximately SEK 90 million for hearing protection and communication systems under the Racal Acoustics brand. The customer is a European NATO country and the systems will be used in vehicles. Most of the deliveries will take place during the current year.

The hearing protection and communication systems under the Racal Acoustics brand are mainly used in heavy vehicles in critical and extremely noisy conditions, which puts high demands both on communication capability and hearing protection functionality.

“There is no doubt that the Racal Acoustics solutions are market-leading in extremely noisy vehicle environments. The current order is a clear example of the increased activity level we are now seeing in the market for heavy military vehicles, particularly in Europe,” says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO of INVISIO.
