

Adapteo delivers temporary hospital buildings in Denmark

Adapteo Plc Press Release 23 March 2020, at 12.00 noon CET

The current global pandemic COVID-19 is putting heavy pressure on the Nordic hospitals. Adapteo has delivered several temporary adaptable building solutions for regional hospitals in Denmark. The buildings are being used as screening areas for COVID-19 testing of patients, administration and accommodation facilities for medical workers.

- We are doing everything we can to handle this serious situation in the best possible way, for our employees, our customers, and society. We are a recognised partner in the development of social welfare, and we feel a great responsibility to help and contribute to this extraordinary situation where many patients need extra medical care, says Philip Isell Lind af Hageby, President and CEO of Adapteo Group.

In the last couple of days, Adapteo's adaptable buildings have been delivered to regional hospitals in Randers, Køge, Roskilde, and Aabenraa in Denmark. For Randers Regional Hospital, the assignment came in at 2 pm, and the delivery of the building was finalised at 8 pm the same day.

- To deliver adaptable building solutions where the medical workers can treat patients that are ill in a good work environment means a lot to us, both as a company but also as human beings working at Adapteo, says Mads Blom, Managing Director at Adapteo Denmark.
