NCC signs strategic partnering agreement

NCC has signed a long-term strategic partnering agreement for security classified projects. The value of the agreement is estimated to be between SEK 3 to 5 billion.

NCC has signed a strategic partnering agreement with an undisclosed customer. The agreement extends over ten years and includes several construction and civil engineering projects that will be conducted in partnering form and called off on an ongoing basis across the term of the agreement.

“NCC’s clearly defined procedures and well-established work methods for security classified projects, both in construction and in civil engineering, mean we can effectively guide our customers through multiple construction processes over time. We are now looking forward to advancing and deepening the partnership already in place with our customer,” says Tomas Brannemo, Head of NCC Infrastructure.

The order value of the partnering agreement as a whole is estimated at approximately SEK 3 to 5 billion over a ten-year period. Orders called off under the contract will be registered on an ongoing basis in the NCC Building Sweden and NCC Infrastructure business areas.
