New Head of Marketing and Communications at NCC Property Development

Annette Kaunitz will be taking over as Head of Marketing and Communications at NCC Property Development, which thereby further strengthens its staff organization. Annette Kaunitz has been appointed to develop communications work with the aim of supporting NCC Property Development's business.

Annette has been working with communications issues for this business area since November 2011, and will assume the position of Head of Marketing and Communications on May 1, 2012.

– This is one of several recruitments that have taken place in a short period of time with the aim of further strengthening and developing competencies in this business area. Annette's extensive experience and passion for communications issues are ideally suited to our continuing efforts to build a strong team, said Joachim Hallengren, President of the NCC Property Development business area.

Annette was most recently at Fabege, where she was Head of Corporate Communications and was a member of Group Management. She has been appointed to develop communications work using NCC Property Development business as a basis, in order to create sustainable and attractive commercial properties for customers.

– I am looking forward to this exciting challenge. NCC is a company that is at the cutting edge of important sustainability issues, which constitutes a solid basis for successful communications work in the real estate industry. My ambition now is to make a clearer connection between communications work and customer and business value, as well as strengthening the relationships with prioritized stakeholders in order to support the NCC Property Development's business, said Annette Kaunitz.
