

Foxway ranked among the top 1% globally in EcoVadis sustainability ratings

Foxway has been awarded the Platinum rating by the global sustainability assessor EcoVadis, placing the company among the top 1% of all companies assessed worldwide. The recognition reflects Foxway's long-term commitment to integrating and continuously strengthening sustainability across its business.

Over the past year, Foxway has implemented several important improvements that contributed to advancing from a Gold to a Platinum rating. The assessment is based on, among other things, enhanced sustainable procurement processes, the company's first independent third-party assurance of its sustainability report, and expanded ISO certifications at Group level.

"Achieving the Platinum rating and being ranked among the top one percent of all assessed companies is a strong recognition of our systematic approach to sustainability. It demonstrates that sustainability is embedded throughout our business and that we have a robust foundation for meeting future sustainability requirements," says Sara Lindstrand, Chief Sustainability Officer at Foxway.

EcoVadis is one of the world's most widely used sustainability assessment platforms, evaluating companies across four key areas: environment, labour and human rights, ethics, and sustainable procurement.

For Foxway's customers, the Platinum rating provides additional confidence when choosing a partner. The assessment confirms that the company has a mature and effective management system, supported by clear policies, concrete actions, and measurable targets to ensure sustainability challenges are managed systematically and effectively.

"EcoVadis does not only assess ambitions and policies, but also how effectively they are implemented in practice. Achieving the Platinum rating gives our customers confidence that we work in a structured way to address relevant sustainability issues while continuously improving our performance to create long-term value," says Sara Lindstrand.

The Platinum rating further strengthens Foxway's position as a leading provider of circular tech solutions. By extending the lifespan of tech such as computers and mobile devices while maximizing resource reuse, Foxway helps businesses and public sector organizations reduce their environmental impact while achieving both their business and sustainability objectives.
