New corporate public and media relations manager at Scania

Erik Bratthall has been appointed corporate public and media relations manager at Scania. He assumes the role effective immediately and will continue to drive Scania's position as a leader in the shift towards sustainable transport in the public and media relations domain.

Bratthall joins Scania from Arla Foods Sverige where he has been the head of media relations. In that role he has, among other things, driven Arla Food's sustainability agenda including Arla Food's journey towards sustainable transport and logistics. Bratthall has previously been Head of media relations for Visita and press secretary to previous Swedish ministers for the Environment Lena Ek and for Trade and Industry Maud Olofsson.

"The transport sector globally needs to become sustainable in order to reach the climate targets. Scania is driving the shift towards emission free transport for heavy commercial vehicles and it is exciting to now be part of this journey," says Erik Bratthall, corporate public and media relations manager, Scania.
