Partnership brings real-time cyber exposure management to Swedish organizations—prioritized, actionable, and built for results.

Stockholm, Sweden – September 1, 2025 – Nanitor, the European leader in Continuous Threat Exposure Management (CTEM), today announced a strategic partnership with Advania Sweden. As the first partner to introduce Nanitor to the Swedish market, Advania will equip its customers with the fastest, most efficient way to identify, prioritize, and remediate cyber risks—continuously and at scale.

This partnership is set to redefine how Swedish organizations approach operational cybersecurity—moving from complex, reactive measures to streamlined, results-driven action.

Heimir Fannar Gunnlaugsson, CEO of Nanitor, said:

“This is a decisive move in our mission to raise Europe’s cyber hygiene baseline. Advania Sweden’s market reach and proven track record make them the perfect partner to deliver Nanitor’s real-time, prioritized approach to security. Together, we’re not just reducing noise—we’re enabling organizations to fix the most critical issues first, every time. That’s the difference between being compliant and being secure.”

Niklas Chachalatos, Business Manager Security Services at Advania Sweden, added:

“Nanitor’s platform changes the game for our customers. It cuts straight to what matters, delivering instant visibility and clear, prioritized actions. This aligns perfectly with our philosophy—security that’s effective, understandable, and free from unnecessary complexity. In today’s environment, that’s exactly what organizations need.”

Nanitor’s CTEM platform uses its signature Nanitor Diamond to provide a visual, real-time overview of every asset and its vulnerabilities, mapped by criticality. The result: faster decision-making, targeted remediation, and measurable risk reduction.

With this partnership, Advania Sweden strengthens its position as a trusted security leader, while Nanitor accelerates its expansion into key European markets, following growing demand for practical, results-focused cybersecurity solutions.
