

BioGaia ranked among TIME's 500 best global companies in sustainable growth

BioGaia has been recognized by TIME Magazine's and Statista's prestigious list of the World's Top 500 Companies Pairing Growth with Environmental Stewardship. This recognition highlights BioGaia's commitment to combining strong business performance with responsible environmental practices.

The ranking evaluates 5,000 global companies based on three core dimensions: revenue growth, financial stability, and environmental impact. The environmental assessment focuses on carbon emissions across Scope 1, 2, and 3, both in total and relative to revenue and industry peers. Other factors such as the use of renewable energy, water use, and waste handling were also considered to provide a comprehensive view of environmental performance. BioGaia is proud to be among the Swedish companies featured on this global list.

"This recognition reflects our long-standing commitment to growing our business while taking responsibility for our environmental impact", says Theresa Agnew, CEO and President of BioGaia. "We are proud that our approach to responsible growth has earned us a place on this global list."

BioGaia's inclusion on the list reflects its long-standing focus on:

- Advancing environmentally responsible production and packaging, including the use of 100% certified paper for secondary and transport packaging and product leaflets
- Introducing innovative, low-impact materials, such as wool-based envelopes in select markets to replace plastic bubble wrap
- Fostering a culture of inclusion, integrity, and innovation across global teams
- Maintaining transparency and accountability, with robust ESG reporting and strong corporate governance
- Achieving an AA ESG rating from MSCI, recognizing BioGaia's effective management of environmental, social, and governance risks
- Upholding high standards for food safety and quality, certified under HACCP principles.

These are some examples of BioGaia's ongoing efforts to manage emissions and advance sustainability practices that align with our mission to promote health and well-being.
