

Stella Polaris is chilling with Tate Britain in London

7th December 2012 - Late at Tate Britain

Time 18.00-22.00

Free access - no ticket required

The organizers behind one of the world's largest electronic festivals, Stella Polaris, are now teaming up with Tate Britain. On December 7, Stella Polaris will bring its magical experience to Tate's polished floors in Space 9. Performance, music and much more combine at this late night opening exploring the continuing influence of the Pre-Raphaelites on contemporary art, fashion and music.

Stella Polaris is proud to announce the unique opportunity to recreate the delicate Danish summer atmosphere and magical electronic universe at Tate Britain on December 7, 2012.

"It's one of our biggest dreams come true as organizers. It's a huge endorsement that such a large institution has agreed to host us in their beautiful space. It fires our spirits and motivates us to pursue even more adventures abroad "says Kalle B from Stella Polaris.

In Denmark, Stella Polaris is known for presenting contemporary and highly acclaimed artists and the event this night is no exception. Mads Björn will undoubtedly get under the skin of the guests with his evocative tracks, acoustic guitar and sparse means. Musician and producer August will accompany Mads with his lowered electronic sounds to create deep chill-out music. Listeners will also find electronic duo DJ Lulu Rouge contributing to a superb evening with their electronic sounds, alongside a number of their remixes of great artists such as Moby, Robbie Williams and Choir Of Young Believers.

Line-up: Mads Björn (live), Lulu Rouge, August, Nicka, Løwenstein and Kalle B.

Stella Polaris took its first baby steps back in 1997 and since then sprinted forward to celebrate its 15th anniversary in 2012 as the world's largest free chill-out festival!
