SIGNIFICANT EVENTS AFTER THE END OF THE REPORTING PERIOD

- Bulten have announced that earnings for the second quarter was negatively affected by approximately SEK 25 million due to a lower production rate in order to adjust the stock level.

CEO'S COMMENTS

"The second quarter saw a continuation of the decline on the car market which began in the second half of 2018, and the market situation is reflected in Bulten's lower volumes. Net sales decreased by -3.5%. Earnings was affected negatively by a lower rate of production in order to balance inventory levels to demand, but also due to lower sales, primarily toward the end of the quarter. The lower production rate has brought the reduction in inventories according to plan, but also resulted in a lower utilization of the production units' capacity and thus under-absorption of fixed costs. The ambition of adapting inventory levels was previously communicated in connection with the Q1 report. The under-absorption had a negative impact on earnings of approximately SEK 25 million during the second quarter.

We are not satisfied with the development during the quarter, but the adjustment of production rate was necessary in the prevailing market climate. At present, demand remains lower than last year, and volumes related to new contracts have ramped up more slowly than anticipated. With this in mind, the production rate will remain lower at the start of Q3. A review of the company's costs has been initiated for adaptation to the current market situation.

As previously announced, Bulten has contracts in place worth just over half a billion SEK a year at full production in 2021. During the first half-year, we have also won several smaller contracts with a total annual value of approximately SEK 20 million, in addition to the previously already announced of approximately SEK 130 million."

BULTEN IN BRIEF

DEVELOPMENT DURING THE QUARTER

During the second quarter of 2019, the decline in the passenger car market which began in the second half of 2018 continued and the market situation was reflected in Bulten's lower volumes. Net sales decreased by -3.5%. The order intake, which decreased by -12%, also indicates a more restrained market. In addition, the comparative figures for the corresponding quarter last year have been challenging - one quarter when customers' sales were stimulated by the environmental regulations that were subsequently introduced.

Earnings was affected negatively by a lower rate of production in order to balance inventory levels to demand, but also due to lower sales, primarily toward the end of the quarter.

The lower production rate has brought the reduction in inventories according to plan, but also resulted in a lower utilization of the production units' capacity and thus under-absorption of fixed costs. The ambition of adapting inventory levels was previously communicated in connection with the Q1 report. The under-absorption had a negative impact on earnings of approximately SEK 25 million during the second quarter.

Production adaptation has been necessary in the current market situation. At present, demand is still weaker than in the previous year, and volumes for the previously announced new contracts have been more prolonged. Given these conditions, the production rate will continue to be lower at the beginning of the third quarter. A review of the company's costs has been initiated for adaptation to the current market situation.

As previously announced, Bulten has contracts in place worth just over half a billion SEK a year at full production in 2021 and the company's position remains strong. During the first half-year, we also took on several smaller contracts with a joint annual value of SEK 20 million. Despite a more cautious market, Bulten also received several smaller contracts during the first half of the year, of a total annual value of approximately SEK 20 million in addition to the previously already announced of approximately SEK 130 million.

The previously announced relocation of production in China, from Beijing to Tianjin, is proceeding according to plan. Costs for this relocation have so far this year negatively affected operating earnings by SEK 7 million, of which SEK 6 million in Q2. The remaining part of the costs of SEK 16-20 million is expected to arise during the rest of the year. The relocation will generate growth opportunities for Bulten on the Chinese market.

Regarding the planned factory investment in Poland, the process is continuing with negotiations and land development.

The raw material prices that increased dramatically in 2018 have stabilized, although at a high level. Operating earnings for Q2 totaled SEK 21 million, which equates to an operating margin of 2.7%. Adjusted operating earnings for the relocation in China amounted to SEK 27 million, which equates to an adjusted operating margin of 3.4%.

In June, Bulten won an award from EcoVadis for its work on sustainability. Bulten achieved Gold Medal level in the EcoVadis sustainability ranking, and is also ranked in the top layer among companies in the same industry.

MARKET AND OUTLOOK

Approximately 85% of Bulten's net sales are attributable to light vehicles and roughly 15% to commercial vehicles. Around 91% of total sales are attributable to direct deliveries to vehicle manufacturers (OEMs) and the remainder to their suppliers and others.

According to the latest LMC Automotive forecast for Q2 2019, European production of light vehicles is expected to decrease by 1.1% and heavy commercial vehicles* is expected to increase by 1.6% compared to 2018. Weighted for Bulten's exposure, this means a decline of -0.7% on the corresponding period.

However, passenger car sales for Western Europe in the first half of 2019 show a larger decline of -3.5% compared with the same period in 2018. The slowdown in Europe can be explained by new environmental tax regulations (WLTP) in several European countries, as well as concerns about Brexit in the UK. According to LMC Automotive, the development in China during the first five months of the year resulted in a sales decline of about -13%, which also affects suppliers' production in Europe.

Bulten's products are mainly distributed to Europe, but demand is governed by the production of vehicles for the global market.

At the end of 2018, the management team estimated that Bulten's market share amounted to about 18% of the European market for fasteners for the automotive industry, which is an increase of 1 percentage point on 2017. On the same market, Bulten's estimated market share for FSP business was around 65% at the end of 2018, which is an increase of 4 percentage points on 2017. The information is based on data from the European Industrial Fasteners Institute (EIFI) relating to European automotive industry purchases of fasteners during 2018.

Bulten has a strong position in its niche, and long-term growth opportunities are looking good despite the current market unease, with incoming volumes from already signed contracts worth just over EUR 67 million annually when full production is reached in 2021. The conditions for winning new business are deemed strong.

ORDER BOOKINGS AND NET SALES

Second quarter

Operating earnings (EBIT) totaled SEK 21 (57) million, equating to an operating margin of 2.7% (7.1). Operating earnings adjusted for relocation costs totaled SEK 27 million, equating to an adjusted operating margin of 3.4%. Bulten's result for the second quarter was negatively affected by approximately SEK 25 million due to lower production rate.

The lower production rate has resulted in reduction of inventories but, however, resulted in a lower utilization of the production units' capacity and thus an under-absorption of fixed costs.

*) Forecast from Q1 2019 for commercial vehicles

The raw material prices that increased dramatically in 2018 have now stabilized, although at a high level. Operating earnings were marginally affected by currency fluctuations of SEK 0 (4) million when converting operating capital at the closing day rate. Operating earnings adjusted for relocation costs totaled SEK 86 million, equating to an adjusted operating margin of 5.4%. Bulten's result for the first half year was negatively affected by approximately SEK 25 million due to lower production rate. The lower production rate has resulted in the reduction of inventories but, however, resulted in a lower utilization of the production units' capacity and thus an underabsorption of fixed costs for the second quarter.

The raw material prices that increased dramatically in 2018 have now stabilized, although at a high level. Operating earnings were affected positively by currency fluctuations of SEK 3 (9) million net when converting operating capital at the closing day rate. OTHER INFORMATION

ACCOUNTING PRINCIPLES

This half year report has, for the Group, been prepared in accordance with IAS 34 Interim Financial Reporting and the Swedish Annual Accounts Act. The financial reporting for the Parent Company has been prepared in accordance with the Swedish Annual Accounts Act and RFR 2 Accounting for legal entities, issued by the Swedish Financial Reporting Board. The accounting policies applied are unchanged compared to those outlined in the 2018 Annual Report, with the exception that IFRS 16 Leases has been applied from January 1, 2019. The Group has conducted an overview of all of the leases, where the information has been compiled and summarized as background information for calculations and quantifications in conjunction with converting to IFRS 16. The leases for the Group primarily involved leasing premises and in certain cases leasing equipment. The Group has decided to apply the simplified transition method, which means that comparison figures do not need to be converted and there is no effect on opening equity. In the opening balance for 2019, non-current assets and interest-bearing liabilities increased by SEK 223 million.

New accounting policies on January 1, 2019

The Group as lessee

The Group's leases primarily comprise right-of-use assets regarding premises and equipment. The leases are recognized as right-of-use assets equating to a lease liability on the day the leased asset becomes available for use by the Group. Short-term leases and leases for which the underlying asset is of low value are excepted.

Each lease payment is distributed between repayment of lease liability and financial expense. The financial expense shall be distributed over the term of the lease so that each accounting period is charged with an amount corresponding to a fixed rate of interest for the liability recognized in the respective period.

The lease period is established as the non-terminable period together with both periods covered by an opportunity to extend the lease if the lessee is reasonably certain to utilize that option, and periods covered by an opportunity to terminate the lease if the lessee is reasonably certain not to utilize that option.

The Group's lease liabilities are entered at the present value of the Group's fixed fees (including fees which are substantially fixed). Call options are included in the fees if it is reasonably certain that these will be utilized to acquire the underlying asset. Penalty fees which are charged on termination of the lease are included if the lease period reflects the fact that the lessee will utilize an opportunity to terminate the lease. The lease payments are discounted by the lease's imputed rate of interest if this interest rate can easily be established, otherwise the Group's incremental borrowing rate is used.

The Group's right-of-use assets are recognized at cost and initially include the present value of the lease liability, adjusted for lease fees paid on or before the start date, as well as initial direct costs. Restoration costs are included in the asset if a corresponding provision relating to restoration costs has been identified. The right-of-use asset is depreciated on a straight-line basis over the shorter of the asset's useful life and the length of the lease.

NOTE 1 INCOME

Bulten is engaged in manufacturing and sales of fasteners. Revenues from product sales are reported at the time the control of the product is transferred to the customer. This usually takes place at the time of delivery to the customer and ownership is transferred. Bulten's customers are mainly in the automotive industry in Europe, Asia and the United States. The tabel below refers to income by geographic market where the customer's delivery point is located. The Group has the major of its income from customers in Northern Europe, but part of the sales is then exported to other markets in the rest of the world. Customers are mainly manufacturers of light vehicles but also heavy commercial vehicles and other suppliers, so-called tiers. For heavy commercial vehicles, most of the deliveries are for critical fasteners for engines. Of the total sales, the majority goes to the chassis/body.
