Norwegian aid organisation renews IT agreement with Rejlers

Norwegian Church Aid, one of the Nordic region's largest aid organisations, is extending its agreement with Rejlers concerning the provision of IT services. Norwegian Church Aid has been using Rejlers since 2007 and imposes exacting requirements as regards IT and communication because it operates in many different countries using infrastructure which varies widely in quality.

- An effective IT system is vital in order for us to carry out our mission. We frequently work under challenging conditions, carrying out relief work in over thirty of the world's poorest countries," says Bjørn Are Geithus, IT Manager at Norwegian Church Aid, adding:
- A shared IT platform is essential in enabling our employees to work together effectively across borders. We are a large organisation which aims to provide the best possible aid for every krona that is invested, which means it is vital for us that IT operations are optimal and cost-effective. We are very pleased both with the services that Rejlers provides and our partnership generally, says Bjørn Are Geithus.

The IT agreement includes the operation of infrastructure, applications, office support systems and IT support to 1100 users spread across the globe, including support for a total of 19 field offices in the developing countries.

- Norwegian Church Aid imposes exacting requirements on its suppliers and we are very proud of our long-standing partnership with them. It goes without saying that we are very pleased to have had this renewed vote of confidence, says Rene Eriksen, Head of Industry at Rejlers in Norway.
