Rejlers Embriq signs agreement with Infotjenester AS

Rejlers Embriq is extending and expanding its operational agreement with Skills and consultancy services provider Infotjenester AS. The agreement is valid for three years and means that Embriq will manage all the servers, OS and databases that form the basis for Infotjenester's online solutions and consultancy services, for example, legal affairs, HR, management, HSE, payroll and accounting.

Infotjenester AS has been an operations customer of Embriq since 2008 and is now renewing its agreement for the third time. Originally, the customer solution for Infotjenester was part of the agreement. This is now being extended to also include the development and testing environment, which was previously operated by Infotjenester itself.

Absolutely critical to provide good advice

"For us, the IT operations provided by Embriq are quite simply critical," says Martin Helgesen, IT Application Manager at Infotjenester, who explains: "We are totally dependent on functional IT, as we have to give good advice to our end customers every day through our encyclopaedias." "We serve hundreds of thousands of managers and employees in our online systems, and our consultants answer more than 40,000 work-related queries from customers every year," says Helgesen, who points out that regardless of whether the questions relate to HR, management, HSE, payroll or accounting, customers expect swift and appropriate problem-solving. "There is no room here for systems that don't work," he says.

Very exciting customer

"Infotjenester is a very exciting customer for Embriq," says René Eriksen, Vice President Operations at Embriq. "We have known Infotjenester all the way since 2008 and have been part of its formidable growth, so we are looking forward to continuing the journey," explains Eriksen, who points out: "Embriq has numerous customers like this where a highly-skilled organisation is absolutely critically dependent on IT to deliver its products and services. Many of the customers also have integrated IT as a key element of their actual product. That makes us both a central supplier, but also an important partner when these companies come to develop their business further," says Eriksen.
