Swedbank Robur's CEO Liza Jonson appointed delegate to the Swedish delegation for the 2030 Agenda by the Swedish Government

The delegation is appointed by the Swedish Government with the aim of promoting, facilitating and stimulating that Sweden fulfils the goals and targets of the 2030 Agenda, the implementation of the 2030 Agenda and the work on the 17 global sustainable development goals adopted by the UN 2015.

The Swedish delegation for the 2030 Agenda consists of a total of 12 members representing local authorities, regions, governmental agencies, academia, labor unions, civil society and the private sector. The work with the action plan for Sweden's part of the 2030 Agenda was initiated in 2016 and a final report will be submitted from the delegation to the Government in March 2019.

-We who manage and invest large amounts of assets have great power and it also comes with a great responsibility to contribute to a more sustainable society. Swedbank Robur is the second largest owner on the Stockholm Stock Exchange, and social engagement has played a key role through Swedbanks history, I am both happy and proud of the opportunity to contribute in this important context, says Liza Jonson, CEO of Swedbank Robur.

The delegation is appointed by the Swedish Government but act independent towards the Government. The delegation's final report shall be based on facts and experience based on the broad knowledge the delegation together has.
