

Wrapping Paper for Halloween - Is there anything we would not wrap?

Rudey Loves, the nations favourite wrapping paper, occasions card and rubbish presents company has been either really clever, or very cynical this week, with the launch of a Halloween Wrapping Paper.

For people with absolutely no common sense and more money than they need, the latest wrapping paper is an absolute must. How could you possibly get through Halloween without wrapping up the sweets you will be giving greedy children who call at your door, dressed in costumes which meet with politically correct stereotypes. (You won't find any of our products on sale in Asda.)

Wittily entitled, 'Boo - Did you poo your pants'..... our Halloween paper has been lovingly designed in around 15 minutes to provide yet another wrapping paper for yet another occasion that genuinely should not be celebrated with gift giving.

Rudey commented on his latest creation: 'It seemed like a good idea at the time. We don't have any expectations for the product and if you really want to buy it, you will have to email us, as we don't even think we will put it up for sale on the site.'

An online retailer with a difference. Our wrapping paper has been designed to pack a punch and make your presents stand out under the tree. Whether you want to offend your granny, upset a neighbour, or just demonstrate to friends that you are truly cynical, then this is the site with the product range for you.

Designing and producing items which we describe as 'ironic' since 2011 (as far as I can remember).
