Irisity selected as an Intel AI-builders member fostering next generation AI

Irisity AB (publ) has entered into Intel AI-builders program.

The Intel AI builders' program is an enterprise ecosystem of industry-leading independent software vendors, system integrators, original equipment manufacturers, and enterprise end users who have a shared mission to accelerate the adoption of artificial intelligence across Intel platforms.

Through focused collaborations, Intel Builders members accelerate optimized solutions to market and deliver tools and documentation to speed solution deployments.

- "We are looking forward to being part of Intel's AI ecosystem. This is in line with our strategy of making our deep learning models run efficiently on all platforms, including embedded systems and edge computing devices without GPUs. This will enable us to run more parts of our system on a wider variety of hardware, which can simplify installations and open up market segments where lightweight computing platforms are required", says Erik Landolsi, CTO.

Intel has a long track record of working with next-generation AI startups, putting to work over $1 billion dollars in support of new AI product innovation and technology adoption.
