

Acting CFO Christer Johansson appointed new CFO of Hoist Finance

As of today, Hoist Finance has appointed Christer Johansson as its new Chief Financial Officer.

Christer has been working at Hoist Finance since 2014. He has held the positions of Head of Business Control and Head of Group Finance, and since the end of March 2018 he has served as acting CFO.

– I am very happy to announce that Christer Johansson has accepted the role as our new CFO. We have conducted a thorough recruitment process, and we are very pleased that we were able to find the best candidate internally. Christer has extensive industry expertise and the right professional and personal qualities to support Hoist Finance when we now are about to take the next steps in terms of growth and operational efficiency, says Klaus-Anders Nysteen, CEO of Hoist Finance.

Christer Johansson has broad and deep experience from the banking industry with several positions within Business development, Advisory and Front office management at SEB. He also has experience in strategic planning and business development from his role as Management consultant at McKinsey & Company.

– I am very pleased to take on the challenge as the new CFO of Hoist Finance. Having been with the company for nearly four years, I know the company well and feel strongly committed to our mission. I look forward to work together with the finance department and our whole management team to execute on our strategy and vision, says Christer Johansson, CFO of Hoist Finance.
