PHILADELPHIA, PA November 13, 2013 – American Law Institute Continuing Legal Education (ALI CLE) proudly announces its inaugural program Hot Topics for Accountants & Tax Lawyers: Tax Returns, Advice, & Examination (www.ali-cle.org/CV044) scheduled for December 16, 2013 at the state-of-the-art ALI Conference Center (www.ali-cle.org/center) located in University City. This one-day, continuing education program is specially designed to give accountants and tax attorneys helpful tools, practical tips, and clever strategies from a nationally recognized faculty composed of seasoned accountants and tax practitioners.

“As the complexity of the tax regime continues to grow, tax compliance work becomes more difficult in a more enforcement-oriented environment,” says Scott D. Michel, Esq., co-chair of the program. “This program will give expert advice to tax professionals on a variety of topics to make their advice more valuable to clients, while at the same time helping the practitioner avoid running afoul of the growing web of ethical and professional standards.”

This program serves as a unique networking opportunity for in-person accountant and attorney attendees looking to create new business opportunities and swap practice tips with each other, as well as the preeminent faculty members. Attendees unable to travel to Philadelphia still benefit from the program’s instruction, via live web simulcast.

“By combining the talents of accountants and lawyers, our faculty offer substantial knowledge at the highest levels and sound, practical advice to tax practitioners on how to help clients solve problems, whether they present routine issues or highly sophisticated technical questions,” explains Caroline Ciralo, Esq., co-chair of the program.

Offered for CLE and CPE credit and purposely scheduled for December, when credit deadlines loom, this comprehensive course will help both accountants and attorneys fulfill their continuing education credits.
