

Gunnebo to Preview its Solution for the Connected Retail Store at EuroShop 2017

From 5-9 March, Gunnebo will attend EuroShop 2017 and give invited customers the chance to discover how a future retail application will use connectivity to improve store security and efficiency.

Gunnebo will be presenting a preview of its Gunnebo Retail Solution (GRS) to a selection of invited customers at the world's premier retail event in Düsseldorf this March.

GRS is an open platform for in-store digitalisation. It connects store systems to give retailers actionable data on the shop floor – via a single application. By adding intelligence to that information, GRS enables improvements to efficiency, productivity and store security.

Features include instant alarm intervention, automation of daily processes, fraud notification and resource management.

Time for an Adventure

GRS makes up one part of Gunnebo's stand which is centred around the theme, "Time for an Adventure". The stand is dedicated to demonstrating how retailers can save time and increase productivity through using smarter solutions.

From cash management to loss prevention, there are countless areas where operational processes and security procedures can be made more efficient for retailers.

Gunnebo's stand (A27, Hall 6) will showcase some of the best innovations in this area, from its closed cash management solution, SafePay, to Gateway electronic article surveillance systems. The stand will also feature cash recycling units and graded safes as well as entrance security and access control solutions.

About EuroShop

EuroShop is the world's number one retail trade fair held once every three years in Germany. In 2014, 110,000 visitors were attracted to the event to see over 2,000 exhibitors across 200,000 square metres of exhibition space. The 2017 edition promises to deliver numbers which are just as impressive. It will be held from 5-9 March at the Messe Düsseldorf.
