Alfa Laval wins SEK 80 million energy-efficiency order

Alfa Laval – a world leader in heat transfer, centrifugal separation and fluid handling – has won an order, worth approximately SEK 80 million, to supply waste heat recovery systems for diesel power plants that will be built in Asia. The order is booked in the Boiler & Gas Systems unit in the Marine Division, and delivery is scheduled for 2017.

The systems will recover and reuse heat from the diesel engines to produce steam for power generation, increasing the efficiency of the whole installation.

“Energy efficiency is becoming an increasingly important factor to meet the growing energy demand. Our Alfa Laval Aalborg systems are both reliable and efficient and therefore a perfect fit for heat-recovery applications in the power industry,” says Peter Leifland, President of the Marine Division.

Did you know that... today, on March 1, Alfa Laval inaugurates a new section of its test and training center in Aalborg, Denmark, where new marine products for gas driven vessels will be tested?

About Alfa Laval

Alfa Laval is a leading global provider of specialized products and engineering solutions based on its key technologies of heat transfer, separation and fluid handling.

The company's equipment, systems and services are dedicated to assisting customers in optimizing the performance of their processes. The solutions help them to heat, cool, separate and transport products in industries that produce food and beverages, chemicals and petrochemicals, pharmaceuticals, starch, sugar and ethanol.

Alfa Laval's products are also used in power plants, aboard ships, oil and gas exploration, in the mechanical engineering industry, in the mining industry and for wastewater treatment, as well as for comfort climate and refrigeration applications.
