Getinge will present the Flow Anesthesia Portfolio at the Euroanaesthesia Congress 2019

Getinge announces today that it will present the complete Flow Anesthesia Family including the launch of the Flow-e anesthesia machine at the Euroanaesthesia Congress. This latest innovation of anesthesia machines combines innovative design with leading features for efficient and lung-protective ventilation.

The Flow Anesthesia Family brings advanced ventilation performance and safe anesthesia delivery together in one easy to use unit. Designed to ease the daily work, Getinge's anesthesia machines will help reduce postoperative complications, minimize agent usage and give more time to treat and care for patients.

"This event is truly an outstanding international platform which enables us to launch products, enhance knowledge and provide training to the participants" shared Markus Stirner-Schilling, Senior Director, Acute Care Therapies, Global Commercial Operations.

Getinge, as a platinum partner, has supported the scientific program and will be sponsoring two key symposia on June 1 and June 3. These symposia will present important topics such as Safer Planet and Safer Patients with Less Costs and Re-thinking Hemodynamic Monitoring. Getinge will also be supporting the Euroanaesthesia SimLab where attendees can experience hands-on sessions on the Getinge Flow-i Anesthesia Machine, Servo-u Ventilator and PulsioFlex devices. On the booth Getinge will present the anesthesia, ventilation and monitoring portfolio including NiCCI, the new non-invasive advanced monitoring device.
