Getinge awarded by World Finance for sustainability commitment

Getinge is awarded as 2019's Most Sustainable Company in the Life Science Industry by World Finance magazine. The magazine introduces its very first sustainability awards to businesses across the globe that are taking action to tackle climate change.

In the category Most Sustainable Company in the Life Science Industry, Getinge has been named winner with the following nomination:

The judging panel from World Finance has recognized Getinge for its commitment to reduce emissions and water usage as well as transparency in the sustainability reporting. Getinge is a true leader and example of how a company can align its philanthropic support, the Pratham project, to positively impact the communities where it operates.

"Sustainability is a top priority and something we see as an integral part of Getinge, and we are of course very honored to receive this award. We will continue our work and progress to contribute to a better society," says Magnus Lundbäck, Executive Vice President Human Resources & Sustainability at Getinge.

World Finance provides coverage and analysis of the financial industry, international business and global economy. The magazine is now introducing sustainability awards to businesses that have shown admirable commitment and are making the business world a much greener place.
