

*Manager. Bond Manager.* – a new app from Bricknode

For users of Bricknode products managing bonds things will become a whole lot simpler from now on. The brand new Bond Manager app automates a range of tasks usually done manually.

The new app, an add on for Bricknode Broker, makes sure that accrued interest is calculated every night, capitalizes bonds when needed and sees to it that the tax authorities gets their due – all depending on the individual assets settings or client's obligations.

"We believe this will be a big help for our customers. Streamlining processes saves time, but also minimizes the room for errors." says Lena Birath. She handles the Bricknode knowledge base, where Bricknode users find answers for most questions they might have about their systems.

"We know that many customers have longed for the automated handling of bonds, and are glad to now meet that demand."
