

Advenica wins order worth 10 MSEK from a Swedish authority

Advenica has won an order from a Swedish authority regarding development of a secure file transfer solution. The order is worth 10 MSEK.

Advenica has contributed with its specialised expertise to Sweden's national security and total defence during decades. The company has now been selected to deliver a secure file transfer solution for use within the total defence, commissioned by a Swedish authority. The tailored solution will be mainly based on Advenica's File Security Screener. File Security Screener is a high-security solution for file import combining Advenica's market-leading data diode technology with malicious code scanning.

The order includes development work and will be delivered during the first three quarters of 2026.

File transfer at the highest security level

The File Security Screener (FSS) enables file import to sensitive networks without compromising the integrity and confidentiality of the receiving system. The solution automatically handles malware scanning of all files transferred between different network domains while at the same time assuring separation of the connected networks.

This order is a testament showing that all parts of our wider offering is relevant and important for society's core organisations. Our superior service-level and ability to translate customer needs into well-defined assignments yet again proves successful.
